Its surroundings, has kept us for some years under Democratic rule; but the dawn is breaking, and if my prediction comes true—and the indications are it will—in the coming November I.a Porte county will help swell the Republican majority in this State for you and the entire ticket. [Applause.] We come to pledge to you our friendship for you personally and renew our pledges of loyalty to the party which has chosen you for its standard-bearer. As the Democrate gave us in 1884 three R's, in our congressional district, we now have three H's—Harrison, Hovey and Havne.

In responding, General Harrison spoke even more deliberate and impressively than usual. He said:

"My Illinois and my Indiana Friends-If I needed any stimulus to duty, or to have my impressions of the dignity and responsibility of representative office increased. I should find it in such assemblies as these, and in the kind and thoughtful words which have been addressed to me on your behalf. The American people, ender our system of government, have their public interests in their own keeping. All laws and proclamations may be revoked or repealed by them. They will be called upon in November to mark out a revenue policy for our gov-ernment by choosing public officers pledged to the principles which a majority of our people approve. Fortunately you have now an issue very clearly drawn and very easy to be understood. In previous campaigns we have not quite known where our adversaries stood. Now we do know. Our Democratic friends say that a protective tariff is robbery. You see this written at the head of campaign tracts circulated by their committees. You hear it said in the public speehes of their leaders. You have not once, I think, in the campaign heard any Democratic speaker admit that even a low protective tariff was desirable. Those who, like Mr. Randall, have in former campaigns been used to allay the apprehension of our working people by talking protection, have been silenced. On the other hand, the Republican party declares by its platform and by its speakers that a protective ariff is wise and necessary. There is the issue. Make your own choice. If you approve by your votes the doctrine that a protective tariff is publie robbery, you will expect your representatives to stop this public robbery, and if they are faithful they will do it-not 7 per cent. of it, but all of it. |Applause and cries of That's it." So that I beg you all to recollect that you will vote this fall for or against the le of protection. You are invited to a east of cheapness. You are promised foreignmade goods at very low prices, and domestic competing goods, if any are made, at the same low rates. But do not forget that the specter of lower wages will also attend the feast. [Applause and cries of 'That's so.' Inevitably, as certain as the night follows the day, the adoption of this policy means lower wages. Choose, then; but do not forget that this cheapening process may be pushed so far as to involve the cheapening of human life and the loss of human happi-"And now a word about the surplus in the

Our Democratic friends did not know what else to do with it and so they have seposited it in certain national banks. The covernment gets no interest upon it, but it is seased out by the banks to our citizens at interest. Our income is more than our current expenses. There is no authority for the Secretary of the Treasury to lend the money, and so only three methods of dealing with it presented themselves, under the law. First, to lock it up in the treasury vaults; second, to deposit it in she banks without interest, or third, to use it in the purchase of our bonds not yet due. The objection to the first method was that the withdrawal of so large a sum might result in a monetary stringency. The second obviated this objection by allowing the banks to put the money in circulation; but neither method resulted in any advantage to the government. As to it the money was dead; only the banks received interest for its By the third method the money would be returned to the channels of trade, and the government would make the difference between the premium paid for the bord and the interest that the bonds would deaw if left outstarding until they matured. "If the government bond at the market premium is a good investment for a capitalist who de free to use his money as he pleases, can it be bad finance for the government, having money buying up its bonds? [Great applause.] It is not whether we will purposely raise money to buy our bonds at a premium-no one would advice that-but will we so use a surplus that we have on hand and cannot lawfully pay out in any other way. Do our Democratic friends propose to give the banks the free use of it till our bonds mature? Or do they propose to reduce our annual income below our annual expenditure, by a revision of the tariff, until this surplus is used, and then revise the tariff again to "I welcome Le presence to day of there ladies of your households. We should not forget that we have working women in America [Applause and cries of 'Good,' 'Good'], and that none more than they are interested in this policy of protection which we advocate. If want and hard conditions come into the home the women bear a fall share. [Applause.] And now I have been tempted to speak more at length than I had intended. I thank you for this cordial manifestation of your confidence and respect."

At 3:15 P. M. a delegation of 300 Grundy county, Illinois, Republicans, delayed by a failure in connections en route, arrived, and, with good music and banners flying, roused further enthusiasm as they marched into the park, a marked feature of this procession being the Logan Club in uniform, with grey hats banded with blue ribbon, and a large delegation of ladies with red white and blue sashes. Their reception was an exceedingly pleasant one. Ex-Congressman P. C. Hayes, of Morris, their spokesman, having the happy faculty of making a presentation address without any of the stiff-ness and unnecessary formality that frequently characterizes such efforts. He gave his entire attention to General Harrison, looked pleasant,

General Harrison—I have been designated by these stalwart-looking men and these ladies that are here on the platform, to say a word to you, to let you know we are, whence we came, and what we are here for. You can tell by looking into these men's faces that they are Republicans—they are a clean-looking lot of men. We come from Grundy county, Illinois. I suppose you have heard of Illinois, if not of Grundy county. We are, boys, to see the next President of the United States. [Applause.] We have a sort of friendly feeling for you because Indiana and Illinois he side by side, and I remember that during the days of the war, when some of us fellows were at the front, trying to put down a Democratic rebellion, we had gallant Dick Yates and gallant Oliver P. Morton working here side by side to cheer us at the front. So we feel a sort of brotherly interest in Ben Harrison, and we have come from the State where a majority of the people cannot forget the teachings of Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant and John A. Logan, to pay our respects to you, because you repre-sent us on the national ticket, and because you represent the grand principles that underlie the Republican party. [Applause.] All we want is a little hearty talk, and that you will allow us to come up and shake your hands, and then we will go back to our duty in Grundy county, and I pledge you every one of these men. some of whom voted for William Henry Harrison in 1836 and 1840, and some of whom will cast their first votes in 1888 for Gen. Ben Harrison, will do their utmost to help Illinois roll up a majority of 40,-000 for Harrison and Morton and the Republican party. [Applause.]

General Harrison's reply was marked by the same friendly manner as that shown by the address made him, and he spoke in an animated and cordial way while answering:

"General Hayes and my Illinois Friends-I regret that your arrival was postponed so long as to make it impossible for you to meet with the other friends from your State who, a little while ago, assembled about the platform. I thank you for the kind feelings that prompted you to come, and for the generous things General Hayes has said in your behalf. There is litthe that I can say and little that I can appropriately do to promote the success of Republican principles. A campaign that enlists the earnest and active co-operation of the individual voters will have a safe issue. I am glad to see in your presence an evidence that in your locality this individual interest is felt. But popular assemblies, public debate and convenone are all an empty mockery unless, when the debate is closed, the election is so conducted as that every elector shall have an equal and full influence in determining the result. That is our compact of government. I thank you again for your great kindness, and it will now give me pleasure to accede to the suggestion of Gen.

Hayes and take each of you by the hand." Following General Harrison's reply a large number of the members of the Thirteenth Indiana Infantry, who were here attending their annual reunion, were introduced by Colonel Foster, and General Harrison shook hands with each of them as he had done previously with the members of the different delegations which pre ceded them.

Another pleasant happening connected with the presence of Indiana veterans in the city was a visit of members of the Second Cavalry, Ninth Cavalry and Twenty-sixth Infantry, later in the afternoon, to General Harrison at his residence on North Delaware street. Col. John A. Bridgand introduced the veterans with the following brief remarks:

General Harrison-My old regiment, the Second In-diana Cavalry, the Ninth Indiana Cavalry and the Twenty-sixth Indiana Infantry are all here, to-day, olding a reunion, and, having a great desire to pay their respects to you, have come to your home. I have the pleasure of introducing them, I believe, to our next President, for whom I propose three cheers. Some of the circumstances connected with he visit gave it a humorous character, and Gen.

Harrison fell in with the spirit of the occasion, his reply being frequently interrupted with laughter. He said:

"Colonel Bridgland and Comrades-I am fast losing my faith in men. [Laughter.] This morning a sepresentative or two of this regiment called upon me and made an arrangement that I should receive you at this hour. It was expressly stipulated—though I took no security [laughter]—that there should be no speech-making at all. Now, I find myself formally introduced to you and under the necessity of talking to you. [Laughter.] I am under so much stress in this way, from day to day, that I am really getting to be a little timid when I see a corporal's guard together anywhere, for fear they will want a speech. [Laughter.] And even at home; when I sit down at the table with my family, I have some apprehensions lest some one may propose a toast and insist that I shall [Laughter.] "I remember that the Second Indiana Cavalry was the first full cavalry regiment that I ever saw. I saw it marching through Washington street from the windows of my law office, and, as I watched the long line drawing itself through the streets, it seemed to me that the call for troops might stop; that there were certainly enough men and hornee there to put down the rebellion. [Lauchter.] It is clear that I did not rightly measure the capacities of a cavalry regiment or the dimensions of the rebellion Laughter. | I am glad to see you here to-day. You come as soldiers and I greet you as comrades. I will not allude to political topics on which any of us might differ. [A voice: 'There aint any differences. '| Of course the members of the Ninth Cavalry and the Twenty-sixth Infantry must understand that I am speaking to all my comrades. | A voice: 'The Twentysixth were waiting for the cavalry to get out of the way.' Laughter. | Well, during the war you were willing to wait, weren't you! [Hearty laughter . I was going to say that I had an express promise from Mr. Adams, of the Twentysixth Indiana, that there should be no speaking on the occasion of your visit. [Laughter.] Perhaps his comrades of the Twenty-sixth will say had not sufficient reason for so thinking. as we all know that he is given to joking. [Laughter.] I will be pleased now to meet each of you personally. The reception ended with a few minutes pleasant social intercourse, General and Mrs. Harrison shaking hands heartily with each member of the various commands as they filed through the hallway of the residence.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

The Man Who Employed James A. Garfield as a Driver on the Tow-Path. In the Grandy county delegation yesterday was a gray-baired, feeble and unostentatious looking man, who attracted little attention from the throngs on the streets or about the hotels, yet he had a history which made him of great interest to all who were aware of the distinction that belonged to him. He owned the canal-boat of which ex-President Garfield, when a boy, was driver. The old gentleman's name is Geo. P. Augustine, and he is seventy-seven years of age. He started out on yesterday's expedition to see General Harrison full of animation. A Journal reporter asked him concerning his association with the lad who afterwards became President. "It was in 1840," said he in reply. that I lived in Stark county, Ohlo, and was the owner of a boat which ran between Cleveland and Portsmouth, on the Ohio canal. I was in want of a driver, and my cook told me she was acquainted with a lad who wanted the job. She said his name was Jimmie Garfield, and that he lived not many miles from Cleveland. She also declared that he was a good, faithful boy, and I told her to bring him to me. The next day she got off the boat at the twelve-mile lock, as we called it, twelve miles this side of Claveland, and told us to for her as we came back. We did so, and found ther waiting in company with a lad about nine or ten years of age. 'Captain, I have brought you a driver, she said, and when I said I was glad of it, as I had kept the place for him, she added, 'I knew Jimmie would come.' She was a friend of his family. Her name was Iretta Ives; I do not know what became of her." "How did young Garfield impress you!" the reporter asked him. "As a very smart boy. He also had about as fine a disposition as any lad I ever saw, being generous and kind-hearted as well as energetic. That was in the fall of 1840, and remember that when election day came wanted one of his horses from the tow-path, in order to ride twelve miles ahead to the place of roting in order to east my ballot for General Harrison. Young Garfield not only gave me the horse, but insisted on my taking his saddle. It will be rather hard pulling for one horse, said he, 'and I will walk and drive in order to make it easier for him ' He did it through all of the twelve miles and over. That goes to show how careful he was of horses.

"How long did he drive for you?" "He stayed until navigation closed, which was early in December. He had begun in October, so that he drove for me about two months. After he left me I heard nothing more of him until he had grown up and begun to get fam-

A Gigantic Flag-Bearer.

They raise great corn in the Vermillion and lroquois marsh region of Illinois, or rather in the portion of it that has come under the subtile influence of the draining ditch. But no greater evidence of the soil's fertility was apparent in the Illinois delegation yesterday than the massive form of one of the colored flagbearers. His name is Robert Meredith. He is forty-eight years of age, straight as an arrow, six and a balf feet high, and weighs 212 pounds. His home is near Onarga, where he owns a good farm and raises 100 boshels of corn to the acre. Besides being worth considerable money, which he has coared out of the ground by industrious work, he is a man of influence in his neighborhond, and takes an active part in politics, be heving that the Republican party will even-tually solve a plan for enfranchising his race in

A Medal of the Old Carapaign. Some time since Sheriff H. S. Spencer, who resides at Yorktown, Virginia, obtained from a colored man in that vicinity one of the original 1840 Harrison medals, which was found the day General Harrison's nomination was made. while digging up some earth near Yorktown. Sheriff Spencer sent it to Mr. H. DeB. Clay, of Newport News, Virginia, who vesterday called upon General Harrison, and presented him with the valuable and interesting sonvenir. Mr. Clay gives a very encouraging account of the Republican situation in Virginia, and the demoralization of the Democrats there growing out of Cleveland methods.

Gleaned from the Visitors.

Major Wood, of Michigan City, editor Sonnaorn, of the LaPorte Republican, and Major Biddle, of the same city, were among yesterday's visitors. The John A. Logan Club, of Chicago, the Lasalle German-American Club, and several other clubs, will visit General Harrison on Saturday, the 29th instant. The Republican commercial traveling men of Chicago will start from that city Saturday morning at 8 o'clock to pay their respects to General Harrison. Mr. G. P. Augustine, of Braceville, Ill., a veteran of seventy-seven years, who voted for the elder Harrison in 1840, accompanied the Grundy county delegation. The jaunty little crush hats worn by many of the young girls who accompany the visiting delegations have become generally known as the

Harrison bat. They are made in all shades. from white to black, and are becoming to young LaPorte's fine band of twenty pieces, which furnished magnificent music in generous quantity here yesterday, is now presided over by Mr. William Reeve, and was at one time under the charge of Professor Belcher, of this city. It gave the Journal office a serenade. Among the Illinois delegations yesterday were State Senator Secrist, of Iroquois; Judge S. G. Bovie, and County Clerk B. F. Price, editors E. . Nye and M. S. Taliaferro, of the Watseka Republican: Sheriff J. F. Ireland, Dr. Scull, W. M. Coney, John H. Jones, G. B. Joiner, A. Powell. James Woodworth and Dr. J. H. Gillam.

Illinois takes the cake for displaying its enthusiasm in every conceivable shaps. Not ouly do the men make use of the national colors to produce striking effects, but even the ladies are taking a hand at it. In the Grundy county delegation, yesterday, all the ladies had flags fastened around their shoulders, while some of the younger ones had bands of red, white and blue ribbons dangling from their waists.

Col. J. W. Crumpacker, who spoke for the LaPorte visitors yesterday, and prophesied a victory for the three H's-Harrison, Hovey and Hovne-gives good reasons for the faith that is in him. He is very much encouraged over the prospects of Hoyne's success in the LaPorte congressional district. Since that gentleman's canvass began he has made steady and rapid gains in all parts of the district he has visited. Marshal W. C. Weir, who commanded the La-Porte detachment yesterday, in a recent speech spoke of a remark made by General Grant concerning Hovey's division at the battle of Champion Hills, in the Vicksburg campaign. Word came that the division was being forced back, directed them to push forward without any heaitation, remarking "the enemy must be in bad order". Interrogated afterward by General Sanborn as to what he meant by the remark, the old commander replied that he meant that the enemy could not drive Hovey without being badly damaged in the attempt. The story illustrates as fully as an entire volume the character of the service rendered by the present Republican gubernatorial candidate in this

RAILWAY EMPLOYES. The Wabash Western and Burlington Trouble

Likely To Be Renewed. Sr. Louis, Sept. 19.-It seems to be a fact that the Wabash Western and Burlington troubles are not at an end. The refusal of Wabash Western employes to handle Burlington engines created a ripple of excitement which died out temporarily, owing, it is now claimed, to the fact that meetings of the various railroad employes' organizations are now in progress, but that there will be additional trouble is admitted by railroad men. To an Associated Press reporter, to-day, an officer of the Switchmen's Association said: "I do not care to be quoted; in fact, will not be, but if the Wabash Western discharge men for refusal to handle Burlington engines, I cannot see how trouble can be averted. This Burlington matter is what has led to the proposed federation, and I earnestly hope it will be settled without a great

Referring to the refusal of Wabash Western employes to handle Burlington engines, T. J Carroll, a member of the switchmen's grievance committee, said to an Associated Press reporter: "While I am not at liberty to say what action will be taken in the premises. I know something will be done. I presume what we do will be advisory, as the settlement of the trouble with the hostlers really comes within the jurisdiction of the firemen. The Burlington affair is unfortu-nate all around, and is bound to cause friction end additional trouble in the future."

The Switchmen. Sr. Louis, Sept. 19 .- The switchmen have been in secret session all morning, hearing reports of committees. No action has yet been taken on the federation plan proposed by the ocomotive firemen, but it is favorably regarded. There is little doubt the switchmen will officially indorse federation and appoint a committee with full power to act. Committees of the Switchmen's Association have been in session all afternoon, and at a late hour to-night have not completed their work. The letter from the grand secretary of the Brotherhood of Lecomotive Firemen, now in session at Atlanta, Ga., to-night, but is looked for in the morning. The switchmen are almost unanimously opposed to the proposition attributed to Chief Sargeant, of the firemen, that the Knights of Labor be admitted to the federation, and many of the leaders among the switchmen are outspoken in their opposition to anything of the kind. Important work is looked for at to-morrow's meeting.

The Railway Station Agents. CHICAGO, Sept. 19.-The Railway Station Agents' Association began its fourth annual meeting here to-day. Seventy-five delegates are present, representing seventeen States and territorial organizations. President L. A Clarke, of Carlsbad, Cal., said in his annual address that the association now is and always has been opposed to strikes, but in view of certain local epposition to this view he recommended an amendment to the constitution to prohibit the support of any strike, or any other attempt to dictate to any railway by any member of the organization. An amendment to this effect was reported by a committee later in the day, but a vote was postponed. The report of the secretary shows that the membership of the association is increasing. Five new State divisions have been organized within the past

A Mysterious Conference CHICAGO, Sept. 19 .- About 150 grievance committeemen of the railroad engineers have been in secret session here for two days. They represent the St. Paul, the Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Wisconsin Central, and other roads running in Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. Just what their business is can only be surmised, as the men will not talk. A local paper surmises that it has a political significance, and says that Congressman Lawler and others have been closeted with the engineers.

The Firemen. ATLANTA, Go., Sept. 19.-The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen installed their newly-elected officers to-night and adjourned. Their next session will be held at San Francisco, on the second Monday of September, 1889.

Row Among Odd-Fellows. HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 10. - Some time ago the Odd-fellows of Manchester Unity had some trouble with one of their officers over some funds. and expelled him. The matter was aired in the courts, and after it was disposed of there the expelled member appealed to the higher authorities of the order in England to be reinstated. The result of this appeal was in favor of the expelled officer, but the lodge to which he belonged refused to receive him again into membership, and the other lodges of Manchester Unity and the province stood by it in this decision. In consequence of this the head authorities have suspended all the members of these lodges. The members of Manchester Unity say that they don't care one jo for the action of those nominally at the head of the order, and will continue to work as of old. and will not trouble themselves over the suspen-

Injured in a Falling Elevator.

Special to the Indianapolis Journay. SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 19.-An elevator cage in the Bancroft building, containing ten passengers, dropped five stories at noon to-day. Alexandor O. Falkland had a thigh and ribs broken and is suffering from hemorrhage of the lungs; he cannot recover. The elevator Wm. Umfred, had his back broken, and his injuries are thought to fatal. Robert Critcher, whose legs were broken, is also in a dangerous condition. Several others were severely injured, but will recover. The cable parted in the basement where the wire goes over a wheel. Bancroft, the historian, owns the building.

A Library for Their Employes. COATESVILLE, Pa., Sept. 19. - Mesers. Charles Houston & Son, iron manufacturers of this borough, have commenced the erection of a building for library purposes in the interest of their operatives and their families. Besides the library apartment it will have two class-rooms. in which instruction in sewing will be given to the daughters of the workmen. A small library has been open to the men for some time, and this is now to be enlarged and benefits extended

THE CAMPAIGN IN INDIANA

Scores of Republican Stumpers Actively at Work in Behalf of Their Party.

Gen. Geo. A. Sheridan, Ex-Gov. Porter, Gen. Fairchild and Many Other Speakers Discuss the Political Issues of the Day.

Ex-Governor Porter at Pendleton. pecial to the Indianapolis Journal

PENDLETON, Sept. 19 .- The Republican gathering in Pendleton to-day was a success in every sense of the word. The town was beautifully decorated; the business houses, almost without exception, and nearly all the residences, were covered with bunting and pictures of the Republican candidates for President and Vicepresident. In the early hours of the morning the gun squad sent greeting out over the surrounding hills and valleys, and by noon the towa was thronged with people from the country and neighboring towns. Large delegations came from Anderson. Fortville, Lapel, Markleville. Spring Valley and Eden. with three brass bands and one military band. Ex-Governor Porter's address was listened to by an audience estimated at from 5.000 to 6,000 people. t was a winning speech, and will result in good to the party. A more orderly audience was never gathered at any political meeting, and the totalabsence of rowdyism and drunkenness was remarked by the writer and

Mr. Chandler, the congressional nominee of this district, was present, and made hosts of friends. The party here recognize in him a practical, thinking man, who will fill the position with credit to himself and to his party. Mr. Harvey's address on the tariff was sharp and to the point, and it was regretted by many that he was obliged to conclude his speech so soon, to enable him to catch the Indianapolis

This evening a large audience listened to a political address by Mrs. Ballon, at the Universalist Church. Gen. George A. Sheridan at Warsaw.

Special to the Indianapolis Journat WARSAW, Sept. 19. - Gen. George A. Sheridan was billed to address the people of this city, at the opera-house, this evening, and, when the hour arrived, the audience-room, capable of holding 1,200 people, was crowded to its utmost capacity, while hundreds containing a plan of federation, did not arrive | were compelled to forego the pleasure of hearing him for want of even standing room. Lothper's Cornet Band and Loveday's Hoosier Glee Club were in attendance, as was also the Young Mien's Republican Club, of this place, all of the members being equipped in a nest uniform re-cently adopted and in which they made their first appearance at this meeting. The meeting was called to order by Jas. H. Cisny, chairman of the Republican county central committee, and G. M. Sheriden introduced. although he needed no such special ceremony. as he is well known to the people of Warsaw and Kosciusko county, having visited here in every political campaign for many years, besides speaking here on other occasions. After music by the band and several very appropriate campaign songs by the gies club, Genwhich he touched all the points under discussion eral Sheridan delivered an address, during in the struggle now before us as only he could do it. There are few, if any, better speakers in the country than General Sheridan. Within a brief time after beginning his addresses. he has his audience completely under his control, and keeps it so to the finish by his masterly presentation of facts, his keen, withering satire, his apt illustrations, and his humorous stories, interlarded with the scintillations of his own wit and eloquence. It was a fine speech. and was applauded to the echo. Hon. Eccles Robinson at Columbus.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. COLUMBUS, Sept. 19 .- The people of this city were treated to-night to an address by Hon. Eccles Robinson, the great tariff and labor speaker of Pennsylvania. The wigwam, where the meeting took place, was filled with enthusiastic Republicans, the audience being largely composed of laboring men from the numerous manufactories here, who desired to hear an able discussion of the tariff question. Mr. Robinson's address excelled the most sanguine expectations of his audience. Every phase of the important topic was thoroughly treated, and in a manner that was convincing to his hearers, who were made to understand the serious results that would follow the adoption of the free-trade theories as advocated by the Democratic party. Mr. Robinson's speech was an interesting one, and of exactly the right quality for the laboring voters of this Fairchild and Chase at Tipton.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TIPTON, Sept. 19.-To-day the largest log cabin in the State of Indiana was dedicated to Harrison and Morton by W. S. Kenworthy, of Iowa, in the presence of more than one thousand people. He met the issues in a plain and forcible manner, and was frequently applauded. After the speaking a sixty-foot pole was raised amid loud cheers. In the evening large crowds gathered, filling the cabin to overflowing, and more than a thousand people on the outside listened to an eloquent address by General Fairchild. He led the soldiers to the heights of enthusiasm, and they greeted their old comrade with repeated huzzas. Ira J. Chase followed the General with an earnest review of the tariff question, and he was roundly applauded. At 11 o'clock the crowds were anxious for him to go on. It was a grand opening of the campaign.

Disappointed Prohibitionists. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WABASH, Sept. 19 .- There was much grief among the Prohibitionists assembled in this city, to-day, because of the failure of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, their candidate for President, to arrive according to promise. At noon a telegram from General Fisk was received, stating that he had canceled his Wabash and Indiacapolis engagements because of illness. A. A. Hopkins delivered the address of the day, devoting most of his effort to condemnation of the Republican party for failing to yield to all the demands made upon it by the ultra-temperance men. Prohibitionists were in attendance from all parts of the congressional district. The attendance ranged from one thousand to fifteen hundred.

T. W. Lockhart at Thorntown.

Special to the Indianapolls Journat. THORNTOWN, Sept. 19 .- Hon. T. W. Lockbart, of Lebanon, spoke to a crowded house here last pight on the political issues of the campaign. Many Democrats were out to hear him, and were enlightened for once on the tariff question. The Thorntown Glee Club entertained the meeting with many of their most popular songs. This glee club has gained quite a reputation in Boone and adjoining counties by its inimitable campaign songs, which never fail to bring down the house in deafening rounds of applause. There will be a grand rally here on . Sept. 26, when ex-Governor Porter, Gen. W. W. Berry and Hon. G. W. Harvey will address the people on the issues of the campaign.

Meetings in Union County.

Special to the Indiapapolis Journal. LIBERTY, Sept. 19 .- Dr. J. W. Banta, of Logansport, filled two appointments in Union county, speaking at Billingsville last night to a large audience. Dr. Banta discusses the issues of the day with earnestness and ability that is convincing. Friday afternoon and evening Hons. Jeremiah Wilson and John L. T. W. Taylor at Scottsburg.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal SCOTTSBURG. Sept: 19.-The Republicans of Scott county are fully arroused, and will do their full share of the work between now and the election. A large crowd of enthusiastic Republicans greeted Hon. T. W. Taylor at the court-house last night. Mr. T. is a good speaker, and from a laborer's stand-point pointed out the benefits that would accrue to his fellow-workmen if the Republican party was successful in this campaign. The Democracy of the county are engaged in their old game of "brag and bluster," and hope by that means to keep up the old-time majorities, but will fail.

The Last Letter Written by Major Barttelot -His Distrust of Tippoo Tib. LONDON, Sept. 19 .- Major Barttelot, in his last letter to the Emin relief committee, under date of June 4, just previous to the starting of the expedition, complains that Tippoo Tib had broken faith; that he promised to bring 800 men and had brought only 400, and that he showed a decided dislike the affair and adopted to delay the starting of the expedition, particularly insisting upon lightening the loads of the carriers, especially of ammunition. The loss of stores resulting from Tippoo's action, and from the fact that only half the expected number of carriers were supplied, was most serious. Barttelot speaks well of all the European officers concerned. Tippoo Tib had furnished an influential headsman for the expediwhom Barttelot appeared have confidence. The expedition was largely composed of Manyenas. Barttelot says that to the best of his knowledge Stanley is not dead, but that he cannot get any news from him; that he intends to take the same route, and if he fails to hear of Stanley, to press on to Wadelai and ask Emin to join him in the search. "Tippoo Tib," he says, "has not the remotest intention of helping us any more, but to withdraw now would be pusillanimous, and I will therefore proceed to the best of He asks the committee to suspend all judgment on his actions, past, present and future, until he himself, or Jameson, returns home. Barttelot promises to send news when possible, but save be would not be surprised if the Congo route were blocked later on. He says: "There are many things I would wish to speak of. No doubt l

Speculation as to the Whitechapel Murderer, London, Sept. 19 .- All London is rearing with laughter over a cartoon in the last number of Punch representing a blindfolded policeman seeking criminals while unconsciously dodging between their legs. The cartoon is said to have aroused feelings of the highest indignation in the breast of the Home Secretary, but the opinion is now general that the present Scotland ard system, which he inaugurated with a flourish of trumpets upon taking office, will not survive the autumn session of Parliament. The inquest on the body of the woman found murdered in Whitechapel was resumed to-day. The evidence given by the witnesses testifying confirmed the theory that the murderer is a skilled anatomist. CINCINNATI, Sept. 19.-The hearing of the estimony in the trial of Mesers. Ives and Staynor, formerly of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road, for misappropriation of the property of the road, began to-day. Mr. F. H. Short, secretary of the C., H. & D., testified to having taken to New York, in December, 1886, 27,837 shares of stock of the Dayton & Michigan road, upon the orders of Staynor, who was then president of the C., H. & D., which he delivered to Mr. Woodruff, the treasurer of the road. He next saw the certificate of that stock in a letter sent him by Kuhn. Loeb & Co., of New York, with a request that it be transferred on the books, and made out in certificates of 1,000 shares each. He did this, and delivered the new certificates to Mr. Woodruff. The defense, on cross examination, only brought out the fact that Messrs. Staynor, Ives and Woodruff at that time were officers of the road, and the legal cu stodians of its property.

A Getrysburg Incident.

A gentleman told me yesterday of a strange xperience related by a friend of his. It was during the battle of Gettysburg that his friend, just before entering the action, took his canteen from his shoulder and hid it in a crevice in the rock. Then came that flery hail of shot and shell that swept down regiments like fields of wheat before the reaper. At the close of the battle the soldier forgot all about his canteen. nor did it ever occur to him again until he visited the field at the late rengion. Then it flashed through his mind, and after a few minutes' search he found it where he had left it on that momentous day. It seems scarcely credi-ble that it could have been overlooked during the minute exploration of the field ever since the war, but the gentleman who related the incident is of unimpeachable veracity.
